Remarks: Grab this unique opportunity to purchase an incredible home for not much more than the land value of the 35+ acre parcel and restore this 7,495 square foot architectural masterpiece to its former glory and beyond. The Seller is providing the engineering and a structural proposal to restore the structure and is already submitting for permit to help the new owner jumpstart the timeline for the work. After restoration and interior renovation, the new owner will not only have a home that is a work of art but has great potential for a big upside. 1601 Red Canyon Creek Road perfects the balancing act of proximity and privacy and a desire for land that is highly sought after in the Vail Valley and rarely attained. Situated on over 35 acres in the gated Red Canyon Estates neighborhood, this home is located in one of the Vail Valley's best kept secrets. One of only 13 homesites in Red Canyon Estates, this property provides a degree of privacy in the heart of the Vail Valley that is difficult to match and is backed by BLM/National Forest. The area is just outside the back gate of the Cordillera Valley Club making it an ideal spot for someone that wants to have it all, the country club lifestyle with the privacy unique to large acreage. Pop easily into Edwards for shopping and dining or to ski Beaver Creek or jaunt easily to the Eagle County Regional Airport or jet center. This home is a one-of-a-kind listing in the Vail Valley designed and built by RKD (Jack Snow), the property is divided into three forms connected by glass bridges in order to blur the lines between indoor and outdoor space. The exterior mainly consists of glass, sandstone, weathered steel and patinated copper in order to reflect the materials and colors of the surroundings. This home is truly a piece of art that engages with its natural surroundings while also being the consummate entertainer's home.
